My latest and most relevant projects are listed below. More projects and more details on each project can be found on my website jongalor.com. If you want to see some code or perhaps take a peek at what I'm currently working on, visit my Github page github.com/jonl17.

I strive to update my skills as a developer each day either by taking an online course or reading through articles or code.

Alongside being a developer I am a passionate musician with a bachelor's degree in composition. The first programming language I learned was musical notation!
